DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:
 - a) On page 2, [0012] on line 1, the phrase: "antennas 201A and 201B" should be changed to -- antennas 101A and 101B --.
 - b) On page 3, on line 2-3, the phrase: " the matched filters 206 and 208, the FFEs 210 and 212, the summer 214, and the DFE 218" should be changed to -- the matched filters 106 and 108, the FFEs 110 and 112, the summer 114, and the DFE 118 --.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gutnik et al. (US 2002/0049936 A1).
 - a) Regarding claim 1, Gutnik et al. disclose a method for performing timing recovery comprising:

producing phase signals (16 a-d in Fig. 2) by comparing a signal received at each of a plurality of inputs (clock signal 1-4 in Fig.2) to a timing signal produced by a numerically controlled oscillator (NCO) (clock signal 0 in Fig. 2; oscillator 24 inherent as NCO);

summing said phase signals to produce a sum (18 in Fig. 2); adjusting said sum into an input range for the numerically controlled oscillator (NCO) (22 in Fig. 2; Col 2, L39-42); and producing a timing signal within the NCO in response to the adjusted sum (24 in Fig. 2).

b) Regarding claim 4, Gutnik et al. disclose the method of claim 1 wherein said adjusting comprises:

determining whether each input is receivable (Fig. 3; Col 2, L60-63); determining an offset using a number of receivable inputs (36 in Fig. 3); and adjusting the sum using the offset (as shown in Fig. 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dalmia et al. (US 6,307,413 B1).

Regarding claim 8, Dalmia et al. disclose an apparatus for performing timing recovery of a signal, said apparatus comprising:

a plurality of phase detectors (102 and 104 in Fig. 4);

a summer (106 in Fig. 4; inherent as a summer according to Col 3, L32-34) for adding said detected phases to form a sum;

a level shifter (108 in Fig. 4) for adjusting the sum to within an input range of said NCO (inherent as VCO);

a loop filter for filtering the adjusted sum (108 in Fig. 4); and the NCO (110 in Fig. 4) for generating a timing signal in response to the filtered sum.

Dalmia et al. disclose all of the subject matter as described above except for the specially teaching of plurality of inputs. Rather than detecting phase signals by comparing a signal received at each of a plurality of inputs to a timing signal produced by a NCO, Dalmia et al. disclose detecting phase signals by comparing a signal received at different data rate to a timing signal produced by a NCO (101 in Fig. 4).

However, it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to modify Dalmia et al.'s system to receive two different signal inputs instead of a single input with two different data rate. It would perform equally well with applicant's system.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2, 3, 5-7, and 9-11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
